Uffizi Urges Germany To Return Painting Stolen by Nazis

The director of the Uffizi Gallery in Florence is urging Germany to return a Dutch masterpiece stolen by Nazi troops during World War II, dramatizing its absence by hanging a black and white photo of the work with the label “Stolen”. Eike Schmidt said in a New Year’s appeal that the still-life “Vase of Flowers” by Dutch artist Jan van Huysum is in the hands of a German family who hasn’t returned it despite numerous appeals. — The Associated Press

“The bride’s ex-boyfriend swoops in to try to stop the affair, Aunt Sheila is drunkenly chasing after the wait-staff, and family secrets are revealed,” she said, “but at the same time, the characters learn to embrace their true selves.”

Filled with entertaining live music, a large cast and plenty of surprises, the show goes with The Studio Theatre’s season three theme of celebrating individuality.

“At its heart, this show highlights that being true to yourself and accepting of others is the key to happiness and fulfillment in life,” Kromer said. “I hope viewers will walk away not only humming the catchy and fun tunes in our score, but thinking about how they treat themselves and how they treat the people that they love.”

Kromer also said she hopes the show allows the audience to consider opening their minds and hearts to embrace each other’s differences.

Chantelle Cognevich, who plays maid of honor Jenny Steinberg in the show, said that “It Shoulda Been You” shows that being true to yourself is the best possible way to live life.

“This show has such a big heart,” Cognevich said. “There is so much love and acceptance between each character. It leaves a warm, fuzzy feeling.”

Tickets for the show are available but going fast.

Daryl Dragon, of ‘The Captain and Tennille,’ Dead at 76 in Arizona

The Associated Press

NEW YORK

Daryl Dragon, the cap-wearing “Captain” of “The Captain and Tennille” who teamed with then-wife Toni Tennille on such easy listening hits as “Love Will Keep Us Together” and “Muskrat Love,” died Wednesday at age 76.

Dragon died of renal failure at a hospice in Prescott, Arizona, according to spokesman Harlan

Daryl Dragon

Boll. Tennille was by his side.

“He was a brilliant musician with many friends who loved him greatly. I was at my most creative in my life when I was with him,” Tennille said in a statement. Dragon and Tennille divorced in 2014 after nearly 40 years of marriage, but they remained close and Tennille had moved back to Arizona to help care for him.

Dragon and Tennille met in the early 1970s and soon began performing together, with Tennille singing and Dragon on keyboards. (He would later serve as the Captain and Tennille’s producer). Their breakthrough came in 1975 when they covered the Neil Sedaka-Howard Greenfield song “Love Will Keep Us Together,” which Sedaka himself recorded in 1973 and had been released as a single in Europe.

The Captain and Tennille version topped the charts — and acknowledged Sedaka’s authorship by singing “Sedaka’s back” at the end of the song — and won a Grammy for record of the year. They followed with a mix of covers such as “Muskrat Love” and “Shop Around” and original songs, including Tennille’s “Do That to Me One More Time,” which hit No. 1 in 1980. They also briefly starred in their own television variety show.

A Los Angeles native, Dragon was the son of Oscar-winning composer Carmen Dragon and singer Eloise Dragon and was himself a classically trained musician. Before he was with Tennille, he played keyboards for the Beach Boys and was dubbed “The Captain” by singer Mike Love, who noted Dragon’s fondness for sailor’s caps.

He is survived by his older brother, Doug Dragon, and two nieces, Kelly Arbout and Renee Henn.
